CELEBRATING CHRISTMAS. Bright Within.

find Day Out of Doors, but Generally

Yesterday, as every intelligent school boy knows, was the 20th day of December. but it was much more like Christinas than was the 25th. The great hot iday was celebrated in as quiet a manner as could be desired even by Puritanical people. The large majority of the citizens remained in doors all day and cuitivated the acquaintance of their families, in many instances a somewhat extraordinary proceeding. The children in comfortable homes played with the gifts of Santa Claus until they were ifred, whip the poor walfs of the streets eyed wisfully the cucorated windows, through which could be seen beautifully decorated Christmas trees surrounded by isaughlog little faces which surmounted well-fed bodies. It was the old Christmas celebration, with all the customary joys and sorrows, smiles and tears, lights and shadows.

A large number of poor people were provided with satisfying dinners by some of the charitably disposed, and everybody seemed to be hard at work trying to please comebody else.

The evening out of doors was drizzly was the 25th. The great holiday was cele-comebody else.

The evening out of doors was drizzly and chelriess, but it made the brightly lighted houses seem more brilliant to the moist passer-by, and called up a thousand memories of Christmas times long gone by.

A larger number of private parties were given last night than will be given on any evening until Christmas rolls round again, and vast quantities of egg-nog were disposed of by those who imagined that Christmas cannot be celebrated without "taking a bath" in that seductive intoxicant.

Chesper Railroad Fares. Cheaper Railroad Pares.
On the 1st of January, 1888, the Baltimore and Onto Railroad Company will inaugurate the sale of local "round trip" tickets at all its offices cest of the Onto river.
These tickets will be sold to any station on the line cast of the Onto river, at a discount averaging about 10 per cent. of the regular rate, and they will be valid for passage for theirly days, including day of sale. They will be sold for all trains, every day in the year, and it is expected that their introduction will bring about an increase in the rolume of local travel that will, eventually, more than compensate the company for the reduction in sales.

Tates.

We have no doubt this voluntary action on the part of the Baitimore and Ohio Company will be spyreciated by the people depending upon it for it for the means of transportation, and boileve that ultimate results will establish the wisdom of its liberal policy.

In no place was Christmas celebrated by more thoroughly jolly crowd than at the reform school. If any one knows what Christmas is good for it is the average boy, and a great many of the youngaters at the reform school are, popular predjudice to the contrary notwithstanding, average bys.

The celebration commanced on Sunday afternoon, when there was held avery pleas ant religious service, Rev. Dr. Newman officiating. There was music; lots of its good, vigorous, and seasonable, under the direction of Mr. Will Cohen, who had trained the boys in anthem music for the occasion. If there is any more acceptable vocalization than that which comes from the fresh, sweet voices of a hundred boys, it has not yet been placed before the public.

FUN AMONG THE POYS.

A Jolly Christmas Day at the Reform

School,

lte.

Yesterday, however, was the boys' great day. After breakfast each boy was the recipient of a box of candy and a tin horn. The former vanished in an incredibly short space of time, but, what was more astonishing, the borns made no less noise than if the juveniles' mouths had been unoccupied by any other pasetime than the ear splitting horn blowing. There was no limit to the racket: every boy was a self-constituted committee of one on noises, and no one was neglectful of the duty he owed the season and himself.

When the candy was exhausted, and the neglectful of the duty he owed the season and himself.

When the candy was exhausted, and the noise had been blown out of half of the horns, a number of the boys engaged in base ball and other active recreation, all of which tended to get up extensive appatites for the Christmas dinner, which consisted of roest turkey and toe regular attachments thereto, and many dainties busides. Ample justice was done the well-cooked meal, and when the feast was concluded the boys betselk themsives once more to the feest whitry all and played more ball and blew more horns usuff supper time. The evening meal was embellished with cake and fruit, and it was tho-oughly ealoyed. A number of the boys received Christmas boxes from their friends at home, and they generously shared the inxuries with their less fortunate ompanions.

Col. Shalienberger, the superintendent; Mrs. Shalienberger; the superintendent, and the employes generally, did all in their power to make the boys happy, and to an unprejudiced observer, to a man up a tree, as it were, they succeeded admirably.

DRUNKEN YOUNG MEN.

DRUNKEN YOUNG MEN.

Many of Them Seen on the Streets Intoxicated. The police, generally the best posted as to matters transpiring on the streets on a holiday, were much surprised yesterday at finding so many young men intoxicated. They said that the ages of the youths range! from 16 to 20, and a case of extreme rangel from 16 to 20, and a case of extreme youthful drunkenness was seen on Ninth street, near G southeast, in the person of a well-dressed boy not more than 12 years old. The lad staggered over the sidewalk and the scene was so unusual as to cause many people to come out of their houses and watch the young man. A troop of children followed him a long distance, and one little boy recognized him went and told his father, who took him home. It was a sad exhibition, and the parties guilty of misleading the youth should be punished.
